Letter from the Executive Director

I am pleased to present the work IDM has been doing in 2022 to promote democratic transformation and good governance. We are proud of the progress we have made and remain committed to our mission to advance societal achievements in democracy, decision-making, and the rule of law.

Our programs are designed to empower civil society and advance reforms that promote public integrity, transparency, accountability, and citizen participation. During 2022, IDM teamwork covered over 23 different projects, tackling money laundering, anti-corruption, public administration reform, cybersecurity and human rights and promoting a multi-stakeholder approach to improve public safety and community resilience, fight organized crime; improve public consultation, and foster youth and civic engagement. Such work involved the Albanian Parliament, central (8 different ministries, Prime Minister's office) and local government (35 municipalities), independent institutions like the Constitutional Court, the High Prosecution Council, the State Supreme Audit, the Information and Data Protection Commissioner, the State Police, the Ombudsperson and many more.

IDM's portfolio of Smart Balkans project funding covers support for civil society in Kosovo and Albania. Our mission is to make it a success story as well, hoping the years to come will testify to this.

We enter the 24th chapter of IDM's history with a solid background of achievements in all our programmatic areas and more than motivated aiming the largest possible contribution to society. To achieve this, each of our projects is not simply serving short-term goals but remains instrumental to reforms and societal transformation that are part of IDM's long-term strategic goals.

SOTIRAQ HRONI
Executive Director, IDM Albania

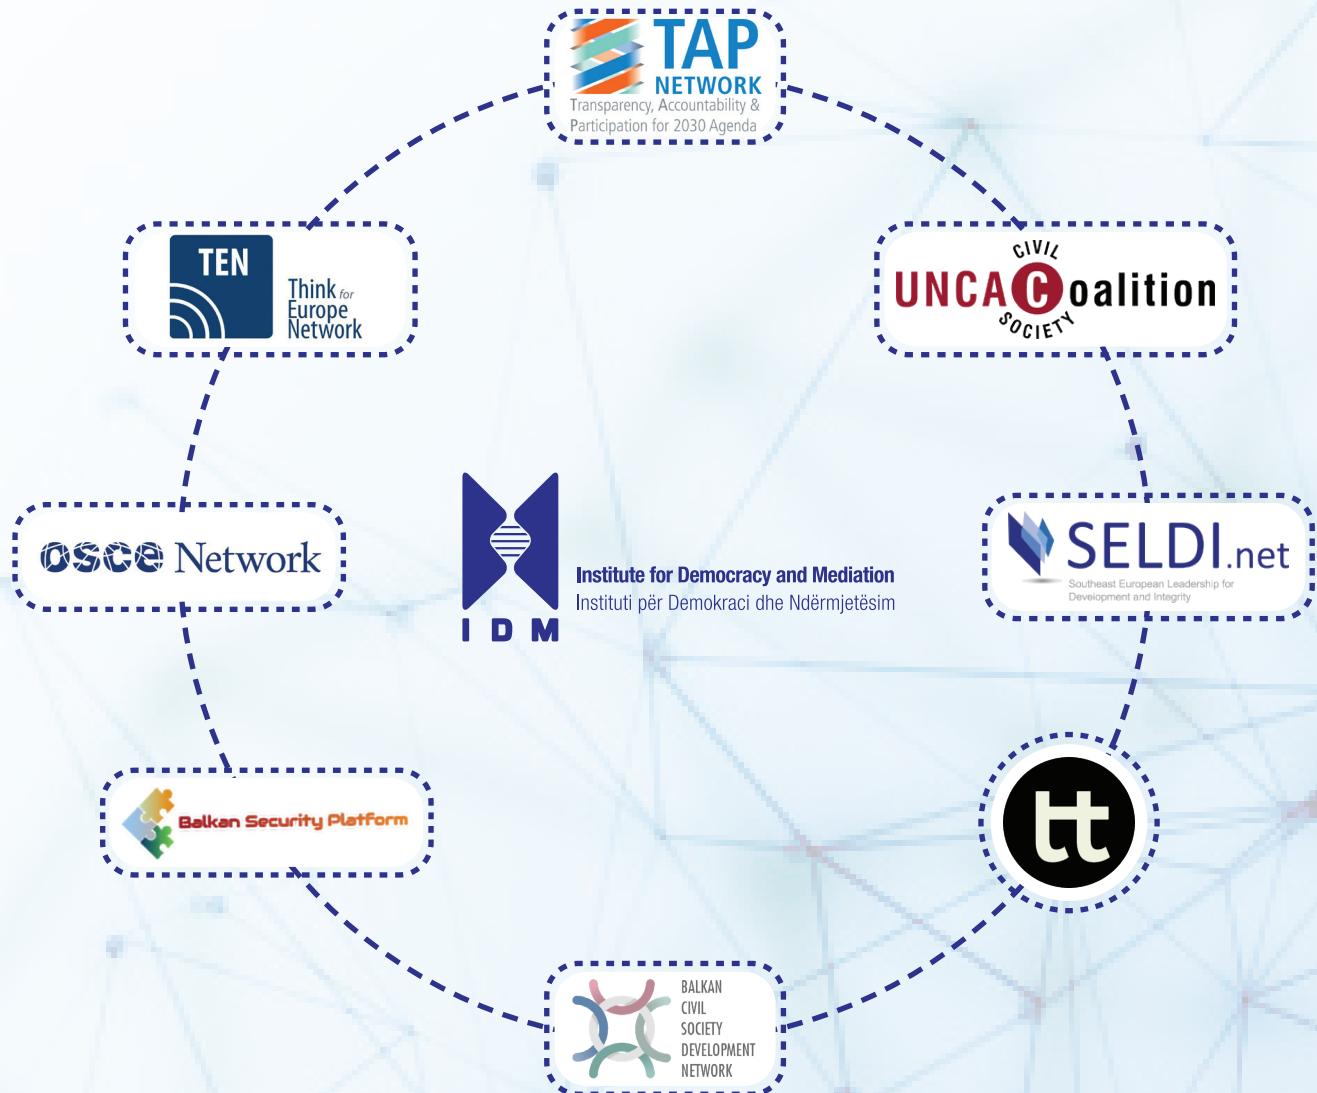

Looking ahead to 2023, we aim to build on our strengths, and widen opportunities but also strategically review our work, especially in areas that need attention to further consolidate the organization. As such the following are some priorities for 2023:

- Revisit IDM's agenda of regional cooperation and EU integration, by piloting joint regional advocacy activities of Western Balkans six. This was provoked by IDM's experience in mentoring one session in the 2022 Summit on "Transforming global uncertainty to regional opportunity" organized in Brussels by Friends of Europe on December 7th, 2022.
- Stronger profile and comprehensive research on public finances, money laundering, financial transparency,
- Civic advocacy and scrutiny for public integrity, ethics, and good governance benchmarks
- Consolidate the quality assurance unit at IDM by matching in-house capacities with associated consultancy.

This report testifies to the dedication, hard work, and unwavering support of our colleagues, partners, collaborators, friends, and supporters. It is with deep gratitude that we acknowledge the immense contributions, which have enabled us to achieve significant milestones along the way. We are enthusiastic about the prospect of another productive year where we reaffirm our commitment to providing quality research that enriches the national, European and public policy conversations.

Our Network

Our audience

The audience that attended our events in 2022:

Sustainable community-based reintegration of Albanian nationals returning from Syria

IDM organised on June 14th, 2022 a workshop on “Strengthening the role of Local Public Safety Councils in the prevention of violent extremism and reintegration of returnees from conflict zones” with the support of the Global Community Engagement and Sustainability Fund (GCERF).

The purpose of the workshop was to strengthen the understanding of the role of LPSC, as an efficient multi-stakeholder mechanism, contributing to public safety at the local level as well as fostering community resilience.

So far, the experience has shown that an integrated multi-stakeholder approach at the local level would be effective not only in addressing traditional threats related to law enforcement and public safety, but also further in the process of preventing radicalization and violent extremism. As such, the LPSC is deemed the appropriate mechanism for strengthening social cohesion and addressing the challenges of reintegrating returnees from conflict zones. This model provides a comprehensive model of crime prevention at the local level, which relies on the interaction among the municipality, police, and prosecution, based on a cyclical model of interaction on the functioning and regulation of the LPSC.

Mr. Zef Laska, Director of Public Order, Albanian State Police highlighted the importance of LPSC as an effective multi-stakeholder local approach for PVE and R&R processes.

Senior-level representatives from the Municipality of Elbasan shared the experience of the municipality regarding the approval of the LPSC regulatory framework and action plan. In order to encourage debate on the importance of this mechanism, representatives of the LPSC from the Municipality of Elbasan simulated the coordination of work for the management of a case that had threatened public safety.

Participants in this workshop were representatives from the Albanian State Police, local institutions from the Municipality of Elbasan and Tirana, senior officials of law enforcement institutions as well as front-line professionals involved in the reintegration process of returnees from conflict areas.

The workshop was welcomed by senior-level officials-members of the GCERF -board, who had the opportunity to offer their feedback and discuss the opportunities of LPSC on public safety issues, including prevention and R&R management processes.

2022 Program areas highlights

Governance

The Governance Program focused on enhancing public integrity and anticorruption processes, monitoring public administration reform and providing reliable quantitative data and trends on major reforms to policymakers and other stakeholders.

On public integrity, we continued our efforts in enhancing the technical capacities of public officials both from central and local government, in drafting integrity plans for six-line ministries, two independent institutions and a subordinate agency and fourteen municipalities of the country. Our expert team provided trainings and developed toolkits for strengthening the capacities of representatives from the General Directorate of Anticorruption in the Ministry of Justice and anti-corruption focal points in other public institutions. Moreover, we developed additional integrity instruments such as the Code of Ethics for the administration of the Parliament and a Civil Monitoring Instrument for the implementation of the integrity plans. A key milestone of these efforts was the unanimous approval of the Code of Ethics for the body of judges of the Constitutional Court.

We carried on with our commitment to provide trustworthy data through the release of the ninth edition of the public opinion poll “Trust in Governance 2021”. The Opinion Poll has become a reference that generates data that help governmental institutions and civil society actors advocate for the enhancement of major reforms related to good governance, anti-corruption, judicial reform, and cross-cutting issues, such as gender equality and social inclusion.

On the public administration reform, the WeBER 2.0 project has consolidated its evidence and civil society-based approach to monitoring the progress of the WBs region’s governments in public administration reform (PAR) based on EU requirements. In 2022, IDM organised a regional conference gathering more than 140 civil society organisations and representatives from the governments of the Western Balkans. The conference contributed to fostering the dialogue between civil society and institutional stakeholders to design and implement inclusive and transparent policies, as well as contribute to the sustainability of citizen - centered administrative reforms.¹

Lastly, in 2022, the IDM researchers began working on a new assignment with Transparency International, which consists of preparing a report on the National Integrity System Assessment. This assessment will evaluate if Albania’s state architecture promotes and operates with integrity in practice, and will identify an anti-corruption reform agenda and approaches to building public integrity.

This platform was created within the framework of the #EU_WeBER 2.0 project, implemented by the Think for Europe Network and financed by the European Union in Albania and other donors.

EU & the Balkans

2022 brought a much-expected breakthrough in the European Union (EU) enlargement process of the Western Balkans. Namely, accession negotiations with Albania and North Macedonia were launched, while Bosnia-Herzegovina was granted candidate status.

Through its EU & the Balkans program, IDM continued to contribute to policy debates on EU enlargement, Western Balkan's accession process, and regional cooperation.

IDM curated a panel discussion in December 2022 in the framework of the EU-Western Balkans Summit, a high-profile event that is organized on an annual basis by Friends of Europe in Brussels. EU officials, leaders of Western Balkan countries, and representatives of civil society gathered to discuss issues on Western Balkans and European Security, empowering alternate industries, youth participation, and building better democracies and economic prosperity. The debate at IDM's panel focused on how to harmonize efforts in the region to tackle common challenges and prepare for EU accession, based on the experience of previous candidate countries in the Baltic region.

Before and after the EU: building better democracies and economic prosperity

#BalkansSummit

The panel featured Vaira Vīķe-Freiberga, former president of Latvia, Manuel Sarrazin, Special Representative for the Countries of the Western Balkans of the German Federal Foreign Office, and Jana Soukupová, Founder of Youth, Speak Up!.

IDM experts have participated in various advocacy missions and official meetings with EU bodies such as Commission and European Parliament, as well as with member states' institutions to discuss Albania's and the WB region's progress in EU accession reforms such as public administration reform, fight against corruption and money laundering, consolidation of civic space, freedom of expression and other criteria which are key to the EU accession as a transformative process and an EU which enjoys the trust and credibility in the eyes of citizens of the region. In March, IDM Program Director took part in ECR's Western Balkans Summit where experts from the region and MEPs discussed the EU enlargement process as an opportunity to counter the challenges in the Western Balkans.

Shaping the public and specialized discourse on EU and Europe in general has been tackled by IDM also through several Op-Eds and articles published in IDM blog, and in other distinguished resources. Namely, as a member of BiEPAG, the IDM Program Director, published a reaction to the European Commission 2022 Country Report on Albania where it noted that while the report is useful to assess the annual progress, it does not attract the necessary attention from the public. IDM researchers contributed to the Trans European Policy Studies Association's book on Russia and the Future of Europe – Views from the Capitals with a paper on the Russian influence in Albania.

IDM remained present in the meetings of the National European Integration Council and participated in the discussion and consultation roundtables of the Partnership Platform, notably regarding Chapter 23 “Judiciary & Fundamental Rights”, Chapter 24 “Justice, Freedom & Security”, and Chapter 31 “Foreign, Security, Defense Policy”.

Security

Albania served as a non-permanent member of the UN Security Council in 2022, where it actively defended the rules-based international order amidst Russia's invasion of Ukraine, which threatened the international order and caused political reverberations in the Western Balkans. The country also faced a new type of hybrid threat through a series of cyber-attacks on critical infrastructure. Organized crime remained a key security concern, particularly in the drug trade. Although violent extremism is not a major issue in Albania, preventive efforts focused on empowering local communities and addressing terrorist content online, prison radicalization, and reintegration still require continuous attention.

In 2022, the Security Program continued to address a wide range of issues through research and tailored capacity-building sessions on countering violent extremism, enhancing transparency and oversight in the defense sector, combatting organized crime, addressing concerns related to security procurement and anti-money laundering, and researching Russian influence in Albania.

For several years, IDM has paid significant attention to enhance multi-agency and multi-disciplinary approaches to security issues by advocating for shared responsibility and closer cooperation in the context of public safety. In such backdrop, IDM has worked to improve the Local Public Safety Council, a mechanism that aims to bring citizens closer to governance in terms of public order and security, as well as to increase citizens' confidence and cooperation with law enforcement authorities, and prevent crime through a proactive approach. In 2022, IDM worked to produce a guideline on the establishment and functioning of Local Public Safety Councils in Albania. This guideline aims to provide a work methodology for LPSCs and outline the necessary institutional and procedural steps for their establishment in all municipalities of Albania.

IDM has continued its work in building community resilience against violent extremism by focusing on groups that are more conducive to this issue, such as youth, returnees, and violent extremist offenders. IDM continued enhancing long-term collaboration among community actors in Albania by promoting schools as community center. The approach has been implemented in eighteen municipalities and twenty-two communities in Albania, to expand the model to a national scale in the following years.

To ensure sustainable and effective rehabilitation and reintegration of Albanian returnees from Syria, IDM continued its role throughout 2022 in fostering community resilience and enhancing the capacities of central and local institutions and frontline responders to support R&R management cooperation, social cohesion, and empower returnees. In January 2022, IDM started the EUTEx project focused on developing a European framework for the disengagement and reintegration of extremist offenders and radicalized individuals in prison. This project establishes such a framework by building on European knowledge, skills and products and taking them further by summoning the best expertise in relevant fields. Through innovative training methods, EUTEx will roll out this framework Europe-wide.

As part of the Balkan Security Platform, IDM continued its efforts to conduct research and raise awareness on the phenomenon and main characteristics of organized crime groups in Albania as part of a regional report. IDM co-produced a policy brief that examined the cooperation needs of Albanian and Kosovar law enforcement authorities in a scenario of no borders between the two countries. To mark the Europe Day for Victims of Crime, on 22 February 2022 the IDM organized a forum focused on the current needs and challenges for victim support and preventing crime recruitment in vulnerable communities of Albania.

IDM paid particular attention to the fight against money laundering throughout 2022. The project “Supporting the Fight against Money Laundering in Albania” was implemented during the year, aiming to develop capacity among AML stakeholders, raise public awareness, and enhance cross-sector engagement.

The Security Program has been also focusing on defense and security procurement. As part of a joint initiative with the Centre for European Security Studies, IDM produced its first policy brief on defense and security procurement governance and oversight.

In the upcoming year, IDM’s security program plans to extend its research, advocacy, and capacity-building programs while continuing to build on its present research; and also enhancing multi-agency and multi-disciplinary approaches to security issues, while focusing on vulnerable groups.

Local governance and integrated development (LGID)

LGID advanced the national efforts in strengthening ethics and integrity at the local-self-government level by expanding the standard municipal integrity planning practice in 14 additional municipalities: Belsh, Përmet, Pogradec, Bulqizë, Berat, Tiranë, Lezhë, Kukës, Pukë, Himarë, Kavajë, Maliq, Shijak, Has. To sustain such efforts, IDM also introduced the Integrity Index as an effective monitoring and assessment instrument of anti-corruption measures at the municipal level.

The last year also marked a milestone in LGID's core component of integrated local development. By supporting our Albanian Network for Rural Development, LGID has been a key driver in the bottom up and participatory rural development that advances local communities' interest and priorities. These efforts contributed to the recognition of ANRD as a catalyst for change in the social and economic empowerment of women and girls in rural areas.

Civic Space

The Civic Space program continued its effort towards an enabling environment for civil society on a national scale and empower active citizen participation in decision-making processes through new forms of deliberative democracy.

Under the PACEP project, IDM successfully implemented the deliberative polling methodology. The deliberative polling initiative, “Shqiperia n’Kuvendim,” generated new knowledge and introduced a new practice for citizen engagement in parliamentary decision-making. Additionally, issue-based public hearings were held with MPs to encourage meaningful participation and input from civil society actors.

On the enabling environment of CSOs, the annual Civil Society Organization Sustainability Index provided a comprehensive assessment of the status and development trends of civil society in Albania, serving as a reference document for addressing challenges ahead and for the development and consolidation of the sector.

The program’s research and advocacy efforts also extended to public consultation processes, with IDM assessing current practices and capacities of central government institutions. This work aims to contribute to legislative improvements and increase the effectiveness of public consultation processes. In a new research area, the program focused on cybersecurity, mapping cases of online violations against activists, civil society actors, and journalists. The resulting research report, “Bridging the Gap Between Cyber Policy Fragmentation and Human Rights,” provides recommendations for governing the cybersecurity sector according to human rights standards.

In 2022 Institute for Democracy and Mediation - Albania in cooperation with the Center for Civil Society Promotion (Centar za promociju civilnog društva – CPCD) as the leading partner organization and Center for Research and Policy Making (CRPM) in North Macedonia started implementing a project named SMART Balkans – Civil society for shared society in the Western Balkans, which contributes to strengthening participatory democracies and Euro Atlantic integrations in the Western Balkans by empowering civil society organizations and CSO networks for stronger and active role in creating peaceful and inclusive societies for sustainable development in Albania, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Kosovo, Montenegro, North Macedonia, and Serbia.

Project is financed by the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs with a grant worth more than 17 million EUR (34 million BAM). Center for Civil Society Promotion (Centar za promociju civilnog društva) signed a contract with the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 6 December 2021. The project has a duration of 4 years until December 2025.

Through the SMART Balkans project, in 2022, IDM awarded eight grants to empower civil society organizations in Albania and Kosovo. Core grants are intended for CSOs that have made an important impact in the areas of security and stability and/or governance and have the potential for an even greater impact in the community. The expected period of support through the core grant is 24 months. Core grants financially support the work of civil society organizations for two consecutive fiscal years. These grants, in addition to financial support, provide organizations with the opportunity to improve the capacities of the organization and staff through customized training and mentoring support, to multiply their strategic impact and be one step closer to the sustainability of the organization. This approach frees CSOs from the pressure created by short-term financing of projects, and enables CSOs to focus on the priorities of users, while at the same time following their mission and working towards the achievement of defined goals.

Additionally, two national conferences were held in Tirana and Pristina in June 2022, to introduce the project to the local stakeholders. Through this sub-granting scheme and related activities, IDM will play a crucial role in empowering civil society organizations and fostering a culture of active citizenship nationally and regionally.

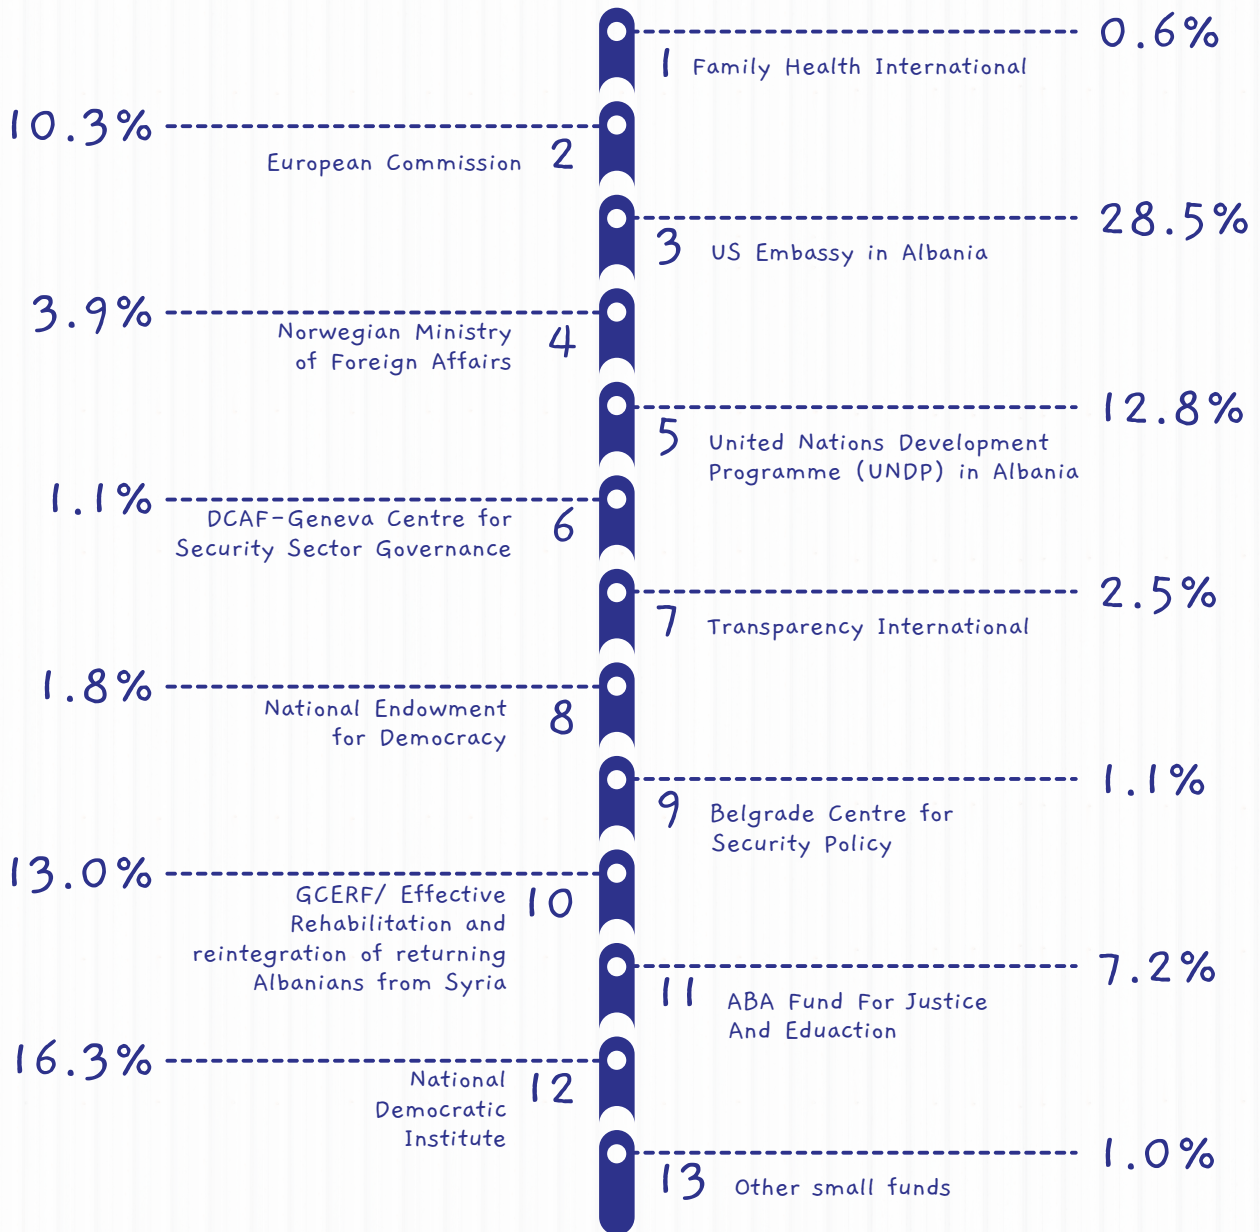

Online outreach

The majority of our audience resides in Albania, but IDM also has a substantial following in France, the United States, Germany, China, Kosovo, Spain, the United Kingdom, the Netherlands and Italy.

Media mentions

In 2022, the Institute for Democracy and Mediation and its staff, events, and publications garnered a total of 212 mentions across international, national, and local news outlets. These mentions included approximately 52 appearances on television through interviews, videos, and live streaming, along with an additional 160 articles, blogs, and publications. IDM appeared in the following broadcast media: A2 CNN, Voice of America (VOA), RTV Klan, Syri TV, Ora News, RTSH, Euronews Albania, RTK, News 24, ABC News, Top Channel, Scan, etc. Relevant print and online news outlets including Gazeta Panorama, BalkanWeb, Exit News, Reporter, Euronews, Euractiv, KosovaPress, Telegraf, Politiko, Lapsi, Dosja, Faktoje, etc.

Media Mentions Highlights:

The conference “Creating resilient communities through multi-stakeholder approach - School as Community Center” with the participation of the Ambassador of the United States in Albania, H.E. Yuri Kim was one of the most significant events organized by IDM, which garnered extensive media coverage, with over 25 mentions throughout the year 2022. Ambassador Yuri Kim emphasized the message of self-respect, ambition, and perseverance to achieve one’s goals to the young people attending the conference. IDM is fully committed to expanding the multi-actor experience “Schools as Community Center” throughout the country, to strengthen the resilience of communities by actively engaging young people at the local level.

Twenty-two secondary schools and municipalities of the country have become part of this approach throughout the year 2022.

In September 2022, IDM published the Opinion Poll “Trust in Governance 2021” an annual exercise used to measure citizens’ trust in public institutions. Each year the report attracts substantial national and international media attention and this year it was the most mentioned publication of IDM with more than 50 broadcasts, press and online media mentions. The Opinion Poll generates data that feeds into the enhancement of major reforms related to good governance, anti-corruption, judicial reform, and cross-cutting issues such as gender equality and social inclusion. Its findings are covered extensively in many media outlets and IDM staff is invited to discuss these findings in various interviews.

After a series of sensitive public events that took place in 2022, a 2016 IDM study on corruption in the state police conducted by police personnel gained renewed media attention, with over 19 mentions.

In 2022, IDM started the implementation of the four-year regional project, “SMART Balkans - Civil Society for Shared Society in the Western Balkans” which is funded by the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs. The primary objective of the SMART Balkans project is to strengthen civil society organizations in Western Balkan countries to play a more active and influential role in building peaceful and inclusive societies. IDM representatives presented the project in various media outlets in Albania and Kosovo, where they also announced the grant scheme available to CSOs, media, and engaged citizens. Over the next four years, the project will distribute a total of 450 grants throughout the region.

IDM’s multi-stakeholder forums on the prevention of money laundering became one of the most discussed topics in the media in 2022. These forums brought together representatives from civil society, investigative media, academics, private sector associations, public institutions, policymakers, and international partners to discuss the common challenges of the fight against money laundering in Albania. The objective of these forums is to increase the role, visibility, and influence of non-state actors in anti-money laundering policies.

For the first time in Albania, IDM in the framework of the “School as Community Center” project organized the “My Freedom Day” annual awareness campaign which is initiated and organized internationally by CNN. Representatives from IDM and high school students appeared on different television shows to discuss the concept of freedom and modern-day slavery.

Institute for Democracy and Mediation
Instituti për Demokraci dhe Ndërmjetësim

The Institute for Democracy and Mediation – IDM, was established in November 1999 as a non-governmental organization dedicated to the advancement of societal capacities, skills and know-how. IDM generates knowledge and expertise for inclusive policy-making, evidence-based alternatives to bolster democracy, and sustainable development.
